Melges 24 World Championship Proposal September 2012

Dear Sirs,

It is our distinct honour to welcome you to the next 2012 Melges 24 World Championship.

Since many years, we have proudly hosted prestigious sailing events.

The finest sailors from Europe joined the spectacular Volvo Cup Series looking for good sailing in beautiful locations and the professional organization of our events.

The culmination of our desire to provide the best sailing experience to Melges 24 competitors has been the World Championship 2008 held by YCCS in Porto Cervo.

In that occasion this NCA offered one of the best events ever in one-design world.

The resounding success of that event, the huge experience of our team and the great trust and respect of competitors are factors convinced us to propose our country and organization system as candidate to hold the Melges 24 World Championship 2012.

In this documents you will find information about two different locations: Alghero and Scarlino.

We hope the choice to offer two options, selected among the several we considered, will show how much we wish take care of our competitors offering them the best experience in sailing.

We look forward to seeing you at the 2012 Melges24 World Championship.

ALGHERO

The town is located in the north-west of Sardinia and it's considered one of the best places for tourists in the island where they can find white sands and a beautiful rocky coast.

The amazing old town is a jewel, a piece of Mediterranean history ready to be discovered and well preserved.

Who takes a walk in the old walled town, very clean and well preserved, can enjoy breathtaking views behind any corner.

Alghero has been the last land the Spanish Kingdom left about 300 years ago and the fortified walls, churches and buildings in Spanish architectural style make this town an unforgettable experience for any tourist.
